Dear Fellow Servant,

Though the world is more connected today than ever, people are more fragmented and isolated than we have seen in generations. The need for a renewed sense of community has never been greater than it is right now. The Bible highlights the goodness of community from the very beginning as God created us for relationship with each other. Though sin broke the sense of community that God originally instilled, Christ restored it and encouraged His disciples to realize it through the new commandment of loving each other (confer John 13:34). The New Testament provides extensive guidance for building fellowship and the church becomes the laboratory for practicing this call to community.

The last year has strained our sense of community in unprecedented fashion. COVID-19 forced us to alter the way we interact with each other and the effects of this are still being felt. In the process of these strains, people have experienced feelings of loneliness and depression in record numbers. This has been the case even among those who are most faithful to our Lord.

During this time, we've learned that community is not so much about being together physically as it is about being one in spirit. We've learned that the Holy Spirit can minister through social media and other media vehicles in the midst of overwhelming challenges. We've learned that physical distance doesn't dampen the love that disciples feel for each other; in fact, this distance serves to strengthen the love and reinforce the bond of faith.

As the impact of the pandemic continues to wane, this is the time for the church to shine brightly as we fully restore the beauty of community in the body of Christ. Our challenge this year is to cultivate this community in such a manner as to reinvigorate the work of the Kingdom. The opportunity we have to foster true fellowship and show the world genuine community is unlike any we've seen in the recent past.

The church must lead the way in demonstrating the blessing of healthy relationships at home, in the neighborhood, at the workplace, and in the church. As we reflect the sense of community God has instilled in us, I am convinced we'll be attractive to a world that feels desperate for connection. Unfortunately, so many in the world fail to understand that the key to connection with each other grows out of a healthy connection with the Father through Christ.

I'm challenging all of our churches and every Mississippi Baptist to take up the mantle of loving God supremely and loving your neighbor as yourself in 2022. Even more, I'm praying that every Mississippian who is lost in sin might see in us this contagious love and be drawn to the Father themselves. May this be the year when the love of God shines brighter than ever through the Mississippi Baptist Convention.

For His glory,
